

Center of Migration Research Seminar Series:

Embarking on Interdisciplinary Migration Research

Time & Date: 15:30 ~ 20:00, Friday, 27 October 2023Venue: E401, Tsurukabuto Campus (Main Meeting Room/大会議室)

Language: English

Program:

15:30 - Opening Remarks

16:00 - Presentation

16:30 - Comments

17:00 - Open Discussion

17:20 - Closing Remark

18:00 - Reception (@ IC Café)

Presenter:Špela Drnovšek Zorko (神戸大学国際文化学研究科・特命講師)“Thinking about migration across geographic, historic, and disciplinary boundaries”*

(移民・移住を考える——地理、歴史、学術の境を超えて)

Opening Address:Junko Tajima (法政大学社会学研究科 教授)Commentators:*Jackie Kim-Wachutka (立命館大学言語教育センター 嘱託講師)Pierre-William Fregonese (京都芸術大学 研究員/Promis 連携フェロー)

※ This a FREE in-person seminar. All VERY welcome!

※ Sign up via bit.ly/20231027-aoyama or QR code above by 24 October.

Or just walk in on the day! (申込は10月24日までに上記のURL、またはQRコードへ。当日参加も歓迎!)

Špela Drnovšek Zorko is a Project Associate Professor in the Graduate School of Intercultural Studies and a member of the Research Institute for Promoting Intercultural Studies (Promis) at Kobe University. After obtaining her PhD in Anthropology at SOAS, University of London, she held a Leverhulme Trust Early Career Fellowship at the University of Warwick and a JSPS Postdoctoral Fellowship at Waseda University, as well as visiting fellowships at the Catholic University Eichstätt-Ingolstadt, the Leibniz Institute for Regional Geography, and the University of Warwick. Her work on diasporic narratives and migrants' encounters with race has appeared in journals including Ethnic and Racial Studies, Comparative Migration Studies, and The Sociological Review. Her current research centres on questions of cultural translation, racialization, and East-West imaginaries in contexts of migration.

About the Presenter